BX Pharmacy slated to reopen Jan. 21

Nicholas Pilch

60TH AIR MOBILITY WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The 60th Medical Group has renovated its Base Exchange Pharmacy at Travis to better serve its patients and staff needs.

BX Pharmacy services relocated to a temporary facility next to the main BX and adjacent to the “lemon lot.”

Following pharmacy construction, the BX Pharmacy is scheduled to reopen Jan. 21 at the BX Mini Mall. The purpose of the construction was to develop a pharmacy layout more conducive to a large pharmacy operation to reduce overall wait times for picking up prescriptions.

“The pharmacy construction aims to improve the efficiency of pharmacy operations for all beneficiaries,” said U.S. Air Force Capt. Michael Johnson, 60th Medical Group chief of BX pharmacy operations. “With such a high patient volume, it is critical for the pharmacy to have an optimal design, innovative information technology assets and spacing necessary to conduct safe and efficient patient care.”

During the changeover, the Script-Center self-service kiosks will remain in operation at the current location for optional refill pickup and be available throughout the closure dates. Beneficiaries should allow three duty days for refill prescription processing.

The kiosks are open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The Satellite Pharmacy will close Jan. 17.

BX Pharmacy hours will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The BX Pharmacy will reopen Jan. 21 at the BX Mini Mall. The purpose of the renovation was to develop a layout more conducive to pharmacy operations for David Grant USAF Medical Center beneficiaries.

The renovation project began in December 2018 and is projected to be completed by late January. Beneficiaries will continue to be able to have their civilian network provider prescriptions and refill prescriptions processed at the renovated site.

Travis, Andrews vital to movement of patients

U.S. TRANSPORTATION COMMAND PUBLIC AFFAIRS

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. — U.S. military C-17 Globemaster III aircraft often arrive at Joint Base Andrews, Maryland, and Travis Air Force Base, California, from foreign locales, transporting cargo, but also, at times, ill or injured service members returning stateside for continuing medical treatment.

As the Department of Defense's single manager for global patient movement, U.S. Transportation Command conducts this lifesaving mission via the U.S. Air Force's aeromedical evacuation system, which provides in-transit health care for America's wounded warriors from the point of injury or illness to medical facilities with the level of care needed to properly treat their medical conditions.

From JBA and Travis Air Force Base, some patients, dependent on medical condition and/or service-directed requirements, are subsequently transported to other locations within the continental United States to reach the best facility for their particular circumstances.

“On a weekly basis, USTRANSCOM moves up to 40 patients from overseas to CONUS, with a broad set of final medical destinations,” said U.S. Air Force Col. John Andrus, command surgeon,

Former 22nd AS leader takes over 436th AW

Tech Sgt. Chuck Broadway
436TH AIRLIFT WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. — Col. Matthew Jones took command of the 436th Airlift Wing from Col. Joel Safranek during a change-of-command ceremony Jan. 7 at Dover Air Force Base, Delaware.

Jones takes command of the 436th AW following a two-year stint as the wing's vice commander.

Jones served in multiple capacities in two stints at Travis Air Force Base, California, including most recently as 22nd Airlift Squadron commander from May 2014 to July 2016.

In a previous stop at Travis from April 2002 to June 2007, Jones was the chief group executive officer C-5 Galaxy instructor pilot, also for the 22nd AS.

Other career highlights include being the first Air Force Chief of Staff Intermediate Developmental Education Scholar at Harvard and several tours of duty in the Pentagon at the Air Force and Defense Secretary levels. He is a command pilot with more than 2,000 flight hours in the T-37, T-1A and several variations of the C-5.

Jones

During his initial address as commander of the "Eagle Wing," Jones addressed both Dover AFB and community members in unison, citing the importance of the relationships between the base and surrounding area.

"When [Air Mobility Command] chose to stray from the norm and allow the vice to 'fly up' to the command position, I committed that it not just be my family who benefits from the added time in place," Jones said. "My commitment is that the relationships and partnerships the base has with the community are equally strengthened by the continuity of this longer than typical assignment."

Maj. Gen. Sam Barrett, 18th Air Force commander, presided over the ceremony, passing the 436th AW guidon between commanders.

Barrett praised Jones' talents and abilities to lead the wing, citing the strong support network at Dover AFB, and expressed confidence that members of the base will continue to thrive.

"Joel, I commend you for a job well done. Your leadership set the bar high as a warrior wing," Barrett said. "Matt,

Air Force announces Spark Tank selectees

AFWERX Public Affairs

AUSTIN, Texas — As the Air Force continues to build an organizational culture that empowers entrepreneurs, it doesn't hurt to celebrate them and give them a stage to share their projects too.

It's been nearly a year since Master Sgt. Jonathan Maas was selected to present his prototype of a renewable-energy chemical agent detector during Spark Tank 2019, alongside five other ideas from Airmen across the force.

Now, as 2020 arrives, the Air Force has selected six more ideas to be shared directly with Air Force senior leaders at the Air Force Association's Air Warfare Symposium, Feb. 28 in Orlando, Florida.

"Spark Tank is a chance to celebrate our Air Force risk-takers, idea makers and entrepreneurs who refuse to accept the status quo, and have determined their own fate by developing solutions that make it easier for us to bring our very best to the fight," said Lauren Knäusenberger, Spark Tank director.

The selection process looked at the need for specific capabilities as well as concerns of safety, policy, Air Force-wide implementation, technical feasibility and scalability.

Spark Tank also offers Airmen the opportunity to get their ideas in front of key enabling agencies that can share expertise and resources such as funding or personnel for the projects being presented and demonstrate pathways for entrepreneurs to make their initiatives successful.

Although only six ideas will be pitched on stage at this year's Spark Tank, more than 200 Airmen took the time to present and submitted ideas during the campaign on the Air Force's Ideation Platform, which spurred multiple mini-events at the major command level connecting Airmen with local resources such as public affairs, contracting and legal.

Key themes included improved task management, commercial best practices for healthcare, workforce development, automation, maintenance, airfield assessment innovation and suicide detection

Survey allows comments

Keith Desbois
DEFENSE COMMISSARY AGENCY
PUBLIC AFFAIRS SPECIALIST

FORT LEE, Va. — Commissary shoppers worldwide can now describe their own shopping experience when they fill out the Defense Commissary Agency's updated "ForeSee" customer experience survey.

"Open-ended questions give customers an opportunity to provide feedback using their own words, and this often provides key information we may not have considered before," said Karl Crosson, the agency's statistician.

The three new questions were added a month ago and appear at the end of the survey. They ask customers to tell DeCA what they liked most about their recent shopping experience, share what improvements they would like to see in their store and, if they select "once every few months or less often," explain why they don't shop more frequently.

"We want to hear about the customer's whole experience," said Mary Michael, chief of the agency's business analytics team. "Not just what they liked, but what they would like us to do better."

On July 21, DeCA rolled out ForeSee replacing the SurveyMonkey receipt survey previously used at all commissaries. Through ForeSee, the agency accesses more frequent customer feedback and promptly identifies areas to improve the shopping experience. The survey tool is also used by the Navy Exchange and many other commercial retailers to gain real time customer feedback.

Customers can access the purchaser receipt survey

First female Muslim chaplain commissions

Tech. Sgt. Armando A. Schwier-Morales
SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE
PUBLIC AFFAIRS

ARLINGTON, Va. — In a room full of family, friends and mentors, history was made with the affirmation "So help me God."

Chaplain candidate Saleha Jabeen was commissioned as a second lieutenant in Chicago at the Catholic Theological Union by the Air Force chief of chaplains, Dec. 18, becoming the first female Muslim chaplain in the Department of the Defense.

"I first came to the United States 14 years ago as an international student," Jabeen said. "I thought I would study and make an impact in the corporate world."

However, when she learned of the trials faced by service members through her brother's deployments and service in the Army, the impact she had set to make wouldn't be in the corporate world.

Jabeen followed her brother into the Army where more lessons about her goals and dreams came to light. While in the Army Medical Corps, Jabeen received opportunities to work alongside chaplains and help out her fellow Soldiers.

"My brother has been the source of my inspiration," Jabeen said. "It was because of his dedication and getting to see his military career that I recognized the importance of the chaplaincy in the armed forces. I saw that when one member gets deployed, all of their family members join them."

During her time in the Army, Jabeen met Army 1st Lt. Jamal Bey, from the 451st Civil Affairs Battalion. They became good friends and mentored each other. When Jabeen told Bey about her dream of becoming a Muslim chaplain, Bey at the time didn't have a reference point but he supported Jabeen in blazing a trail for being the first.

"The commissioning of Saleha is great because as a father you want to be able to tell your children that they can be anything," Bey said at Jabeen's commissioning ceremony. "I now have Jabeen to point to as an example of a woman that broke this barrier."

Do you have a dog that is friendly and loves people?

Would you like to 'share' his love with others?

Please consider volunteering with our non-profit organization, Paws for Healing. We visit all of the local hospitals—Queen of the Valley, St Helena, Napa State, Veteran's Home— and most of the local assisted living facilities just to bring smiles and lessen stress for patients as well as staff and visitors. It is a win-win situation—the dogs love it and the people who pet them do also! Some of our volunteers also go to the local library where children read to the dogs to gain confidence in their reading skills. This is also a great opportunity to share your friendly, loving dog.

The requirements are that the dog is 1 year old or older, that you have had the dog as owner for 6 months, and that the dog is healthy and will pass our evaluation. We provide training and mentoring and you can schedule to volunteer when it is convenient to you and to the facility where you choose to volunteer. It is a wonderful opportunity and we hope you will consider.

US, Japan forces enter new year with bilateral jump

A Japan Ground Self-Defense Force paratrooper with the 1st Airborne Brigade approaches the open door of a C-130J Super Hercules aircraft Jan. 12 over the Camp Narashino training area, Chiba, Japan. The event consisted of three C-130J aircraft from Yokota Air Base, two Japan Air Self-Defense Force C-130H Hercules, two C-1s and a C-2, that dropped 301 U.S. Army and JGSDF jumpers.

YOKOTA AIR BASE, Japan — Three U.S. Air Force C-130J Super Hercules aircraft from the 36th Airlift Squadron out of Yokota Air Base, Japan, participated in the Japanese forces' annual New Year's jump at Camp Narashino training area, Chiba, Japan, Jan. 12.

This is the first year the Air Force participated in the event featuring the bilateral collaboration between U.S. and Japanese forces, utilizing aircraft from both the U.S. Air Force and Japan Air Self-Defense Force and jumpers from the U.S. Army and the Japan Ground Self-Defense Force.

"The New Year's jump originally started back in the 1960s and became open to public viewing in the 1970s," said Capt. Robert Frisch, 36th Airlift Squadron project officer. "It is the prayer for safe deployment of chutes festival, where each year the (Japan Air Self-Defense Force and Japan Ground Self-Defense Force) get together and show the public their capabilities to do a joint jump on a small drop-zone area. That drop-zone location is at Camp Narashino, which is right on the border of Tokyo and Chiba Prefecture. It is pretty much in the city, allowing lots of people to attend."

The Japan Ground Self-Defense Force soldiers, with the 1st Airborne Brigade, along with U.S. Army Reserve Alaska and 82nd Airborne soldiers, jumped from the combined U.S. Air Force and Japan Air Self-Defense Force aircraft, showcasing the combined bilateral military capability in a training environment.

"This is a team effort to successfully complete this event," said Col. Kevin Martin, 374th Operations Group commander. "It's important as we go forward, whether we are Air Force or Army, whether we wear a U.S. or Japanese flag, that we come together as a team."

"This is a New Year's celebration. Though the true reality is this shows a bilateral effort by the (Japan Air and Ground Self-Defense Forces), the U.S. Air Force and the U.S. Army to provide combat power."

The jump emphasized the U.S. and Japan's strong commitment to a free and open Indo-Pacific region, while showcasing the variety of aircraft both military are capable of

You can find more help, tips and hints at www.str8ts.com

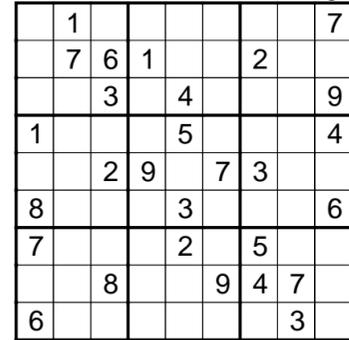

Previous solution - Medium

How to beat Str8ts – Like Sudoku, no single number can repeat in any row or column. But... rows and columns are divided by black squares into compartments. These need to be filled in with numbers that complete a 'straight'. A straight is a set of numbers with no gaps but can be in any order, eg [4,2,3,5]. Clues in black cells remove that number as an option in that row and column, and are not part of any straight. Glance at the solution to see how 'straights' are formed.

To complete Sudoku, fill the board by entering numbers 1 to 9 such that each row, column and 3x3 box contains every number uniquely.

Leaders pays respect at Tomb of Unknown Soldier

QUANTICO, Va. — The new year ushered in a solemn first for the Air Force Office of Special Investigations at Arlington National Cemetery.

Brig. Gen. Terry L. Bullard, AFOSI commander and Chief Master Sgt. Karen F. Beirne-Flint, AFOSI command chief laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Jan. 7. Supported by Col. Shan B. Nuckols, AFOSI vice commander and Mr. Jude R. Sunderbruch, AFOSI executive director.

The ceremony marked the first time in AFOSI's 71-year history that leaders paid tribute to the sacrifices of the Unknown at the revered monument.

Leaders conducts privatized housing tour at Barksdale

Senior Airman Tessa B. Corrick
2ND BOMB WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE, La. — John W. Henderson, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Installations, Environment and Energy, and Gen. Arnold W. Bunch Jr., Air Force Materiel Command commander, conducted a privatized housing tour at Barksdale Air Force Base, Louisiana, Jan. 6.

The tour familiarized the leaders with the current condition of privatized base housing on the installation, aligning with current Air Force efforts to improve the Military Housing Privatization Initiative Program for the service.

“We are taking this very seriously. The way that I treat this is in the vernacular of an urgent operational need,” Bunch said. “We’ve got to continue to put our focus on this as a top priority so that we are providing the right support for our Airmen and their families.”

During the tour at Barksdale AFB, Henderson and Bunch met with residents and base leadership, and they visited the housing management office. The meetings identified specific local issues and the overall priorities for the base.

“Our visit today, in large part, was to reconcile and make sure that some of the things we think should be happening are actually happening at the base level,” Henderson said. “One of the big challenges and take-aways for me is the fact that all of the historic homes (at Barksdale AFB) have some endemic issues with mold. We have some pest infestations and just a lot of backlog work that needs to be done in order to improve them. That’s going to take some financial investment, ... teamwork and a concerted effort to address.”

Safe and healthy privatized housing options are a priority not only to base and wing commanders, but also to the highest levels of Air Force leadership. In 2019, the Secretary of the Air Force directed a 100% review of all privatized housing on Air Force installations. The review, which included housing inspections, resident feedback and policy evaluation, highlighted a number of issues that the Air Force is working to solve at the highest levels.

“We are all committed to ensuring that you have the right living conditions for your family so that you can do your day-to-day mission on your installation with peace of mind,” Bunch said.

The Air Force Housing Review resulted in 51 initiatives along five lines of effort that were designed to improve housing across the board:

- Providing transparency in the work order process.

- Ensuring residents can receive help when they need it.
- Simple move-in and move-out procedures.
- Improved communication.
- Resident “Bill of Rights.”

A key issue revealed during the service-wide housing review was that Air Force military housing offices were inadequately staffed to oversee all of the work of privatized project owners. According to Henderson, through efforts with Congress, the Air Force secured $32 million that will be used to create 219 Air Force military housing office positions across the branch. This is just one solution of many in the works to improve housing for military families.

“This is (part of) our effort to work with the other services, the Office of the Secretary of Defense and Congress on things like a Resident Bill of Rights,” Henderson said. “The Bill of Rights lets residents know what their rights are in housing and that they have the right to competent maintenance. They have the right to a good dispute resolution process, and they have the right to have their issues addressed in an adequate amount of time. It’s a huge effort going on there, and we are proud to be working with our partners.”

Henderson stressed the importance of persistence and patience as the Air Force continues to work the resolutions to housing issues. He also reminded Barksdale AFB Airmen and their families of the resources available to address issues that are not being solved by privatized housing offices at their local installation, which include reaching out to the base military housing office or through chains of command. The Air Force privatized housing helpline is another option and is available 24/7 at 800-482-6431.

“My biggest message is (that) I understand this is frustrating. A lot of us who are working on the solutions for privatized housing have also lived in privatized housing,” Henderson said. “We understand (your) perspective, but I want to leave you with the absolute commitment that we are here, and we are going to see it through. We’re going to make this better.”

Second Lt. Saleha Jabeen, chaplain candidate, speaks about her journey and what it means to her to be the first female Muslim candidate, Dec. 18, 2019, at the Catholic Theological Union, Chicago. Jabeen began her journey in India and transitioned from a student of the corporate world to a student of faith.

Air Force chaplains are religious ministry professionals who support the spiritual needs of Airmen around the world. The Department of Defense has service members of many faiths and those of no faith, but the DoD didn't have a female Imam, a spiritual leader in Islam.

“Any time we advance religious freedoms, it’s a win for all persons of faith,” said Maj. Gen. Steven Schaick, Air Force chief of chaplains. “The fact is America is a place where the Constitution guarantees your freedom to embrace or abstain from religious ideals, and the Chaplain Corps, which Jabeen just entered, exists to ensure every Airman has a religious freedom advocate. This is a big day not just for Muslims, but for persons of all faiths. I could not be more proud of our Air Force for being willing to commission and embrace the first female Imam in the Department of Defense.”

Jabeen was endorsed by the Islamic Society of North America to become the first female Muslim chaplain in the Department of Defense. But, Jabeen’s journey in the Air Force chaplaincy has just begun. She is scheduled to complete training and will then be assigned to a duty station where she will support Airmen. Along the way, she hopes to continue inspiring people and breaking barriers.

“When other people look at what I have done, I want them to know that God has a plan for you and to go out there and be the best version of yourself and accomplish the mission you were specifically designed to complete. Don’t let anyone or anything stop you and when they try – be kind, be generous, be resilient and don’t quit.”

“We have three C-130J’s from the U.S. side, two (Japan Air Self-Defense Force) C-130H Hercules, two C-1s and a C-2 all relatively close to each other dropping both U.S., Army and (Japan Ground Self-Defense Force) together over a short period of time. It takes a lot of coordination to make that happen,” Frisch said. “We can incorporate this type of training into literally anything else, be it landing on an island or any other scenario. We have shown we are capable of so much when we work together.”

“The fact that we can have (Japan Ground Self-Defense Force) and U.S. Army on our aircraft or on their aircraft, shows we can collaborate as one seamlessly. So, to see that happen and do a joint jump, where within just a few minutes we can get 300 combat-ready troops on the ground in a very small area, that’s just really cool to be a part of.”

the latest in a series of bilateral training exercises that, for decades, have increased the combat readiness and friendship between the U.S. and Japan.

“As the commander of the Japanese airborne troops,” said Japan Ground Self-Defense Force Maj. Gen. Shigeo Kaida, 1st Airborne Brigade commander. “I cannot think of a better way to work than to do this event with the U.S. and express my deep appreciation to every U.S. soldier and Airmen involved in this New Year’s jump.

using the link, <https://mydeca.me/receipt>, printed at the bottom of their receipt. They have seven days from their purchase date to log on and complete it.

The advantages of using the ForeSee survey platform include real-time viewing of survey results and the delivery of automated reports that help the agency identify key drivers of customer satisfaction. “Foresee converts our customers’ ‘voice’ into actionable insights to improve customer satisfaction,” Michael said.

Crosson added: “Another benefit is that it allows us to compare the performance between commissaries and the commercial grocers that use ForeSee.”

The new customer experience purchaser survey is the first of a trio of patron feedback instruments that DeCA plans to roll out. In the future, the ForeSee platform will also provide the capability to roll out targeted surveys on social media as well as commissaries.com.

and prevention.

“When it comes to finding new and creative ways to improve our Air Force, often times, we don’t have to look any further than our own teammates,” said Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force

Kaleth O. Wright. “It’s incumbent upon us as leaders to encourage creativity in problem solving. We must create a culture where Airmen are often trying, sometimes failing, and never giving up. This is how truly innovative teams get ahead. We owe it to our team, and to our nation, to do everything we can to bring the best ideas forward with programs like Spark Tank.”

you're the right man at the right time. When leading our great Airmen, you tell them what to do with confidence and vitality."

Safranek departs the base for an assignment as deputy director of the Strategic Plans, Policy and Logistics Division within U.S. Transportation Command at Scott AFB, Illinois.

During his tenure, the wing flew more than 5,000 sorties, including over 1,100 in direct support of combat operations around the world. The base also hosted more than 40,000 people during the 2019 Thunder Over Dover Air Show and Open House, and earned the 2019 Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Jones addressed the wing with a firm commitment to readiness, accountability and a desire to strive for excellence.

"To the Eagle Wing, my

commitment to you is that while leading selflessly and fairly, I will not shy away from the bold leadership you deserve, and I will never forget that it is in our squadrons where Airmen thrive and the mission happens," Jones said. "It is my desire, as the world's premier airlift wing, to operate the best, care the most and have fun along the way."

60th Air Mobility Wing Public Affairs contributed to this report.

distribution process can manage current workload. Contingency planning and patient movement exercises continue to refine and advance the inter-agency effort that would be required to accommodate a larger number of ill and injured servicemembers coming back from a large-scale conflict or contingency.

When needed, military, Veterans Affairs', and National Disaster Medical System hospital beds across the nation are identified through a collaboration between the Departments of Health and Human Services and Homeland Security, as well as the DOD and VA. Patients are assigned and moved to those beds through a hub and spoke transportation system. For example, the Army, Air Force, Navy, and the VA operate over 60 Federal Coordinating Centers, which serve as patient reception hubs and spokes throughout America. This system gives returning wounded warriors access to military, VA, and NDMS beds, as required.

"Established in 1984 and managed by HHS, the NDMS demonstrates a whole-of-government approach in receiving – and treating – large numbers of patients. For instance, during a contingency, such as a hurricane or earthquake, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which is the lead federal agency, would identify DOD and VA FCCs to support the contingency," stated U.S. Navy LCDR Liza Soza, U.S. Public Health Service, HHS' liaison officer, USTRANSCOM's Command Surgeon Directorate. "Whether in a defense support of civil authorities' situation or conflict, FCCs serve as a critical component in the CONUS patient distribution system, enabling a coordinated and comprehensive response that enhances our wounded warfighters' medical treatment, and ultimately, their survivability."

Annually, the USTRANSCOM-led Ultimate Caduceus command-post and field-training exercise evaluates the command's capability and capacity to conduct global patient movement in a contingency or conflict, as well as assesses the interoperability across services, government, and inter-agency partners. This year's exercise occurs at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, in June, and will feature significant VA participation. The host installation will act as the FCC hub, distributing patients to spoke medical treatment facilities located in nine nearby metropolitan areas.

"As the lead for global patient movement, USTRANSCOM ensures the safe, secure, and sound transport of our nation's wounded warfighters inside and outside of CONUS," Andrus said. "Throughout the 24/7 process, our incredible team executes this unique mission with the utmost professionalism, precision, and proficiency, always putting each patient – and their medical care – first and foremost."

USTRANSCOM exists as a warfighting combatant command to project and sustain military power at a time and place of the nation's choosing. Powered by dedicated men and women, we underwrite the lethality of the Joint Force, we advance American interests around the globe, and we provide our nation's leaders with strategic flexibility to select from multiple options, while creating multiple dilemmas for our adversaries.

USTRANSCOM manages the movement of America's wounded warfighters.
